

HISTORY

Expo Productions incorporated in Wisconsin in 1984, started the business with one show and a couple of special events. Today, with over 20 years of exposition production experience and a thorough understanding of the complexities involved in trade show planning and development, Expo Productions Inc. (EPI) is a nationally recognized expert in trade shows and public show management. EPI's president, Jay Partington, has worked in many of the major exhibition facilities in the U.S. and has developed national key relationships.

Today, EPI owns and produces the Wisconsin Manufacturing & Technology Show, a biennial trade show, and an annual public show called The Wonderful World of Weddings & Occasions, produced or managed alongside many other national and international events. Our contacts include facility management groups, other show promoters, quality decorating and electrical companies, and exposition industry leaders. Due to our excellent working rapport with many major suppliers and contractors, we are able to offer significant discounts to our clients.

Priding itself on a reputation for absolute dedication to every project, EPI can handle whatever level of service you or your budget will allow. We'll handle only the production, or we are able to completely initiate and fulfill every detail of your show—all with the result of simplifying your planning responsibilities and ensuring your event is a success.

EPI has the experience, relationships, contacts and personnel to accomplish your goals for your expo!
